

First stills from 'Wolf Totem' Released

The production company behind the film adaptation of “Wolf Totem” has released the first stills.

Adapted from the popular Chinese novel of the same name written by Jiang Rong, the film is helmed by French director Jean-Jacques Annaud.

The new stills feature the leads in the film – a group of wolves running wild on the prairie.

“Wolf Totem” tells the story of a young man who tries to raise and befriend a wolf cub.

According to a previous report, the shooting process has been divided into two parts. At present, the production team is filming the wolf scenes. The second part will focus on the actors.

It has been revealed that the actors have not been nailed down yet.

The film is scheduled for release in 2014.

